“Small businesses that suffered economic injury losses from the severe winter storms and flooding and want to apply for a low-interest loan from the SBA are urged to do so before the deadline,” said Frank Skaggs, Director of SBA Field Operations Center East. “The deadline to apply for these loans is October 21 and small businesses do not need to have physical damage to be eligible to apply for these loans,” Skaggs added.

Small businesses may apply for a loan up to $1.5 million if they have suffered substantial economic injury in the aftermath of last year’s storms and flooding. These working capital loans may be used to pay fixed debts, payroll, accounts payable, and other bills that could have been paid had the disaster not occurred. These loans are not intended to replace lost sales or profits. The interest rate on these loans is 4 percent, with a maximum term of 30 years. The SBA determines the amount of economic injury, the term of each loan and the payment amount, based on the financial circumstances of each borrower.

Interested business owners should contact SBA’s National Customer Service Center by calling 800-659-2955 or 800-877-8339 for the hearing impaired. Business loan applications can also be downloaded from the SBA’s website at www.sba.gov/disaster.
